Contents

| Introductio | n Jochen Böhler, Ota Konrád, and Rudolf Kučera | 1 |
|-------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Chapter 1. | The Baltikumer : Collective Violence and German Paramilitaries after 1918 Mathias Voigtmann | 10 |
| Chapter 2. | Pogroms and Imposture: The Violent Self-Formation of Ukrainian Warlords Christopher Gilley | 28 |
| Chapter 3. | Toward an Interactional Theory of Sexual Violence: The White Terror in Hungary, 1919–1921 Béla Bodó | 45 |
| Chapter 4. | The Many Lives of Mrs. Hamburger: Gender, Violence, and Counterrevolution, 1919–1930 Emily R. Gioielli | 65 |
| Chapter 5. | "A Little Murderous Party": Poland after World War I in the Works of Joseph Roth Winson Chu | 89 |
| Chapter 6. | Suicide Discourses: The Austrian Example in an International Context from World War I to the 1930s Hannes Leidinger | 107 |
| Chapter 7. | The "Healthy Nerves" of the Nation: War Neuroses in Austria-Hungary and its Successor States Maciej Górny | 123 |
| Chapter 8. | Forging a "Winning Spirit": The North American YMCA and the Czechoslovak Army, 1918–1921 Ondřej Matějka | 142 |

| Chapter 9. | When the Defeated Become Victorious: Averting Violence with Football in Post-1918 Romania Cătălin Parfene | 163 |
|------------|-----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----|
| Afterword: | The End of the Great War and Postwar Problems Boris Barth | 183 |