

Contents

Illustrations	vii
Acknowledgments	ix
Introduction. Historicizing Sustainable Urban Mobility Frank Schipper, Martin Emanuel, and Ruth Oldenziel	1
Section I. Selling Unsustainable Urban Mobility	27
Chapter 1. Designing (Un)Sustainable Urban Mobility from Transnational Settings, 1850–Present Ruth Oldenziel, M. Luísa Sousa, and Pieter van Wesemael	29
Chapter 2. History as Motordom’s Tool of Agenda Legitimation: Twentieth–Century U.S. Urban Mobility Trajectories Peter Norton	67
Chapter 3. Railway Modernism Losing Out: Lessons from an English Conurbation, 1955–1975 Colin Divall	91
Section II. Recovering Sustainable Mobilities of the Past	121
Chapter 4. Pedestrian Stories: Recovering Sustainable Urban Mobility Colin Pooley	123
Chapter 5. Load Story: A Century of Pedestrian Logistics in Toulouse Franck Cochoy, Roland Canu, and Cédric Calvignac	147

Chapter 6. Recovering Sustainable Mobility Practices: A Visual History of Turku's Streetscape 1950–1980 Tiina Männistö-Funk	172
Section III. Persistence and Sustainable Urban Mobilities	199
Chapter 7. State Socialism and Sustainable Urban Mobility: Alternative Paths in St. Petersburg since the 1880s Alexandra Bekasova, Julia Kulikova, and Martin Emanuel	201
Chapter 8. Livable Streets and Hidden Unsustainability: The Biography of a Street in Stockholm Martin Emanuel	234
Chapter 9. Green Urban Spaces and Sustainable Mobility: Parks as Pockets of Persistence since the 1830s Frank Schipper	261
Section IV. Research Agendas for the Future	283
Chapter 10. Mobility Justice and the Velomobile Commons in Urban America Mimi Sheller	285
Chapter 11. Toward a Long-Term Measurement System of Sustainable Urban Mobility Appendix: Sources for Measuring Historical Sustainable Mobility Jan-Pieter Smits and Frank Veraart	305
Epilogue. Reflections from a Policy Perspective Hans Jeekel and Bert Toussaint	324
Index	330